Delivering unprecedented service to customers who sell highly complex, small to mid-volume products within challenging marketplaces

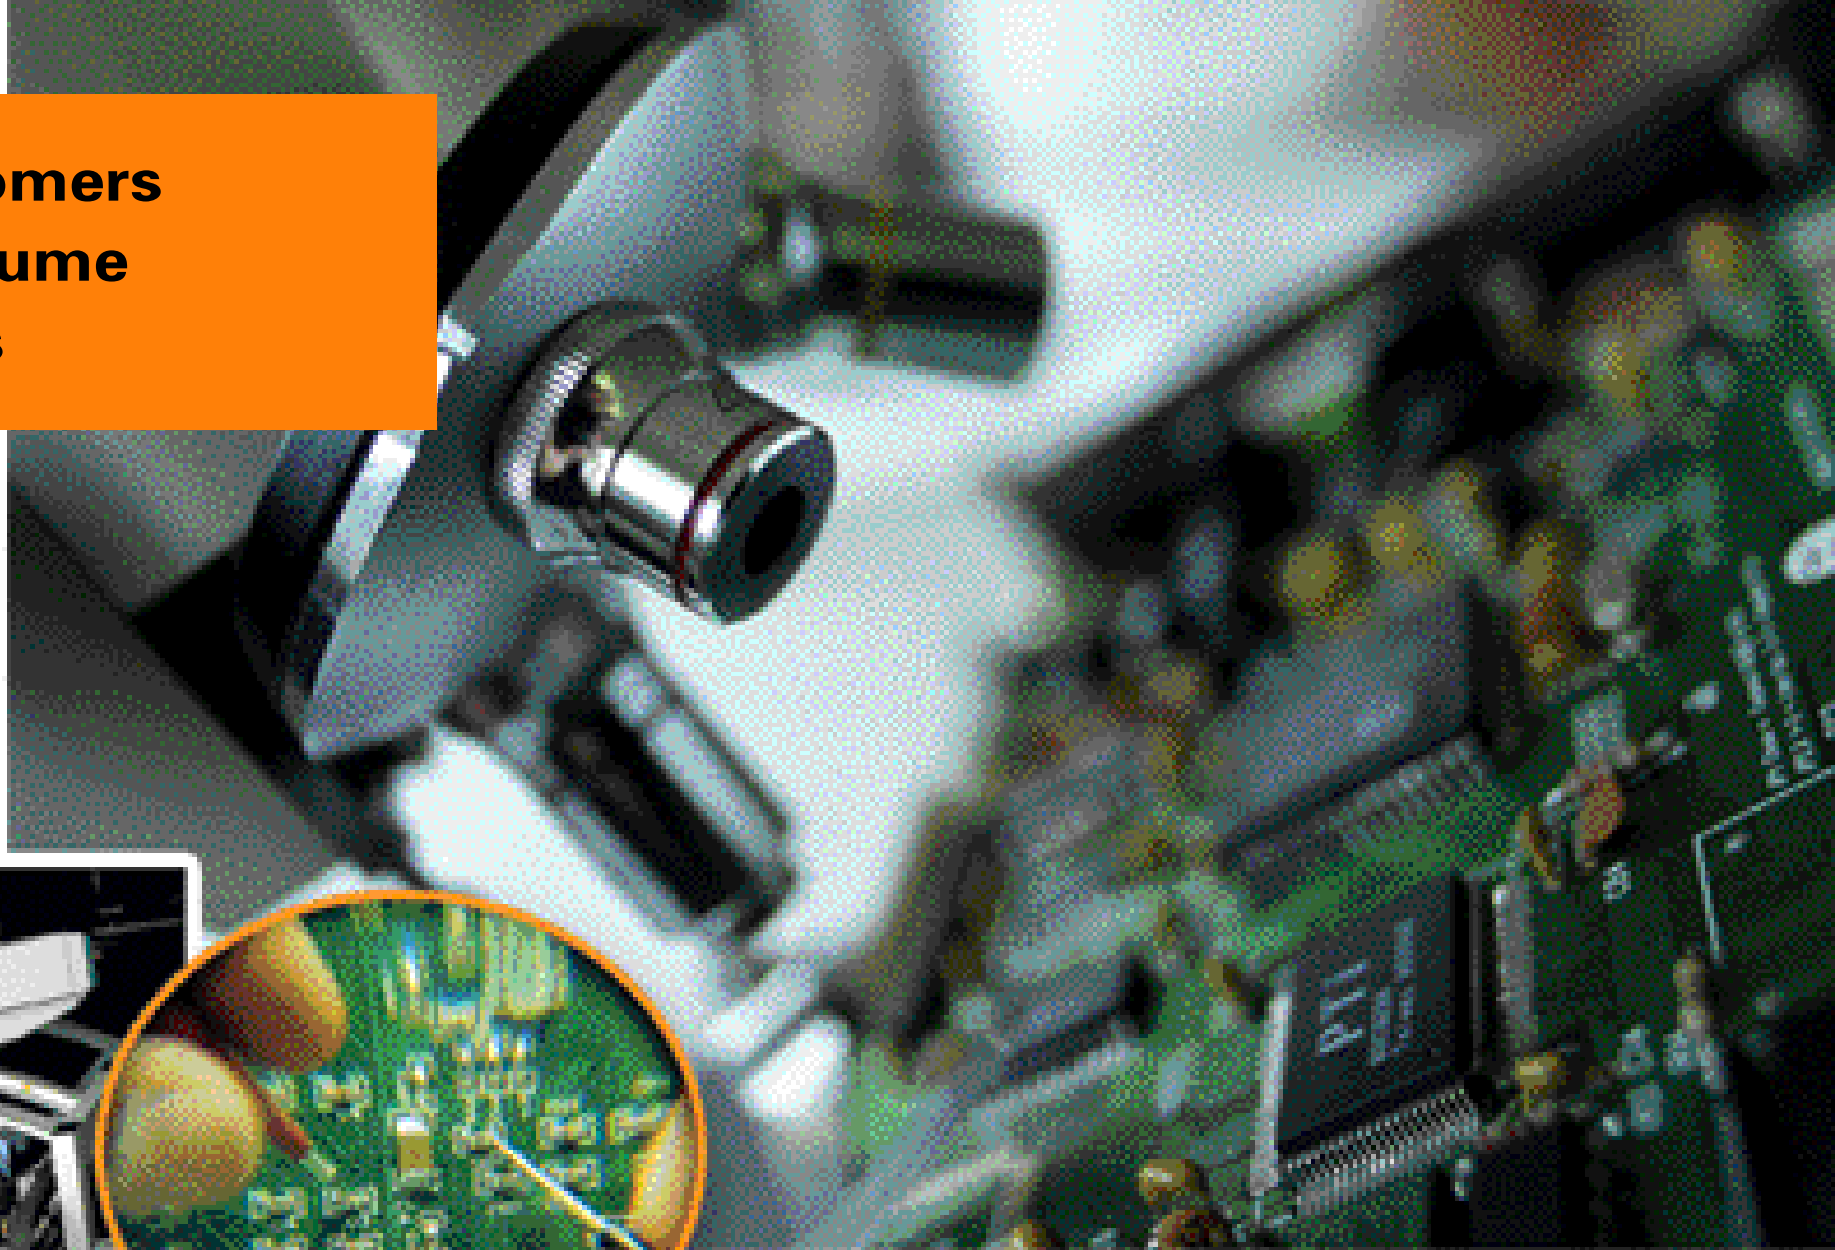

Increasingly, today's companies run lean and focus on core competencies. Bringing in an experienced contract manufacturer can provide the additional expertise and capacity to deliver better products — ultimately increasing your organization's competitiveness.

Founded in 1982, Permatest is an established contract electronic manufacturer specializing in servicing customers who require rapid turn-around on low to mid-volume production runs of high complexity products.

From developing your idea to delivering the product, Permatest can provide a wide range of turnkey services. Everything from design and production planning, to procurement, manufacturing, and testing. Your company can also leverage our experience and relationships with suppliers to improve sourcing and streamline the purchasing process. This leaves your company free to focus on its core strengths.

Permatest continually invests in state-of-the-art technology and facilities. Permatest has the capacity, flexibility and track record to service the increasingly sophisticated needs of the Consumer and Commercial Electronics, Telecommunications, Military, Wireless and Medical Equipment Industries.

Always sensitive to our customer needs, Permatest maintains a secure ISO-certified facility situated in Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This location gives us access to a talented work force and a comprehensive network of quality suppliers. Also, this close proximity to a world-class transportation hub allows Permatest to function as a truly international company capable of servicing customers around the globe.

At Permatest we maintain an uncompromising commitment to service excellence — 100 percent customer satisfaction is our over-riding objective. To achieve this goal, we maintain regular communication with every customer in order to continuously improve the quality of our service.

Let us apply what we know and what we have learned to help you reach your goals. Contact Permatest today.
